WHITE

Sensale Grillo Sicily, Italy	5.30	6.50	18.50
Named after a delicate Sicilian barbecuing technique, this is light, pretty and floral with ripe stone fruit notes.
Picpoul de Pinet Prestige Foncalieu VdP d'Oc, France	5.50	6.95	19.95
How long can a variety remain trendy? Is trendiness a paradox with time? Does it matter when it's this fresh, balanced and a match made in heaven for seafood? Fetch me a bottle of your finest Pickers!
Mayfly Sauvignon Blanc Marlborough, New Zealand	5.70	7.15	20.50
A propensity for naming their Sauvignon after animals has been well documented in New Zealand and they've conjured up another spurious connection with this wine. Luckily, whilst the marketing department have taken an early lunch, the winemaking team didn't. Great zippy fruit with asparagus notes and a delicious finish.
Nostros Gran Reserva Chardonnay Casablanca Valley, Chile  	5.90	7.95	22.50
Wow, Gran Reserva means it's really good. In fact, outside of Rioja it is a pretty meaningless bit of wine nomenclature – every day's a school day right? The spurious name aside, this bright and buttery number, made by a dynamic and young (no doubt good looking too) winemaker is an awesome 'barrel aged' white.
Novas Gran Reserva Riesling Bio Bio Valley, Chile  			22.95
Reeesling is the greatest white grape in the world. This expressive little number from Chile is all about citrus and honeysuckle – perfect with fish. A touch of lees ageing (no need for boring technical explanations) gives it lovely texture and extra depth. See Nostros above for Gran Reserva info.
Luzada Albariño Rías Baixas, Spain	5.95	8.15	23.50
If you've never seen the vines in Rías Baixas then you're missing out on a viticultural treat. The cool sea air means that damp is a real issue for winemakers so they trellis the vines up high and spread them out overhead to maximise air flow and sun exposure. This cool air isn't all bad – the wines are fantastically mineral driven and fresh.
Luis Cañas Barrel Fermented Blanco Rioja, Spain 			27.50
Luis Cañas is a force of nature and legend in Rioja. Born in 1928, you'll still find him at his winery's tasting bar with a glass of this and a bowl of olives. Clearly this wine is tapped directly from the fountain of youth so is guaranteed to prolong life [not a guarantee]. A destroyer of white Burgundy.
Gavi del Comune di Gavi Nuovo Quadro Piemonte, Italy 			28.95
Cortese, the grape and not some underworld Colombian don in hiding, is the star grape here. This is top-notch single estate Gavi that is hand-harvested and spends six months ageing on its lees. White peach and pear with hints of lime and balanced by lovely acidity.
Holden Manz Chenin Blanc Franschhoek, South Africa 			35.95
Elegant and perfumed with jasmine and peach. This has spent a bit of time in oak so it has some great depth to it along with quince and melon flavours. Perfect with beetroot, goats cheese and smoked fish – not necessarily at the same time though.
Chablis Domaine Alexandre Burgundy, France			36.95
I've always loved the fact that Chablis is a puritanical outpost of Burgundy for white wine. You'll find it roughly halfway between the Cote d'Or and Paris – it's closer to Champagne than it is Burgundy. It should always be mineral focussed, refreshing and have a rapier like acidity. Nowhere else in the world can do this with Chardonnay.
Sancerre La Guiberte Loire, France			39.95
Classic and clichéd but who cares when it is as pure and beautiful as this? This will school [apologies for using this as a verb but it sounds 'street'] other Sauvignons in the art of what this grape can achieve. Direct, linear, driven and lots of other ambiguous wine terms apply here. All you need to know is that it's made by a small family (number not height) and is utterly brilliant.

ROSÉ

Campo Castillo Garnacha Rosado Campo de Borja, Spain	5.30	6.50	18.50
Delicate pink with delicious ripe berry fruit and strawberry aromas. This is not your typical Spanish rosé as it's dry and well-balanced! Perfect if you don't want to go the full Provence dryness and would like a bit more fruit.
Holden Manz Rosé Franschhoek, South Africa 	6.80	9.50	27.95
We've been saying for years that everybody loves lighter rosé and finally producers are starting to listen – we take full, unequivocal and unprovable credit for wines like this. Dry, fruit driven and made predominantly from Provence's classic Grenache, Cinsault and Syrah threesome. Delicious with salmon or beetroot.
Whispering Angel 2018 Provence, France			37.95
Whispering Angel is at the top of the Provence pyramid and the musings on the back label alone are worth the purchase (what on Earth are they talking about?). Luckily, when you strip back the marketing it's a truly delicious wine that deserves its cult following.
